Fourteen-year-old Neil Atkins talks about working on a house-building project in the United States.

I got involved in the house-building project through my Uncle Brian. We went to stay with him in the United States for six weeks during the summer holiday. He was helping out on the project and asked me to come along. At first I wasn't interested. I was enjoying watching lots of new channels on TV! But after a while I got bored and went along to see what he was doing. I realised that what he was doing was really great!

He was helping out for an organisation that builds houses for people who can't usually afford them. Instead, the organisation buys all the wood and bricks and things you need to build a house. It lends the family the tools and hires some guys who know what they're doing. They also get people like my uncle, who aren't builders but who just want to help out in the community, to do the more simple building jobs. The family eventually pay all the money back to the organisation, but they can do this over many years, and it's much cheaper than buying a new house.

I helped out with moving dirt and preparing tea. It was a bit disappointing that I wasn't allowed to use the tools and do jobs like cutting wood and nailing things together. I understand why they do it, but do design and technology at school so I know I could do it right. Some people had no idea how to use a hammer correctly! But if I go back next year, I'll be able to do it, because I'll be fifteen then.

 C. No experienced builders were needed to build the house.
 D. The future owners helped to build the house.
63. Neil was surprised that.....
 A. his uncle had such good building skills.      B. some adults didn't know how to use tools.
 C. he wasn't allowed to cut wood.                    D. houses are so expensive in the USA.
64. Neil will be able to use the tools next year because.....
 A. he is planning to study design and technology.      B. he will be old enough.
 C. his uncle is going to teach him how to use them.      D. there will be fewer people on the project.
65. What might Neil write in his diary about his experience ?
 A. Building the house was okay, but it wasn't as fun as watching American TV!
 B. I learnt a lot of useful things for my design and technology course from working on the building project.
 C. I really enjoyed building the house. It gave me the chance to use my design and technology skills.
 D. Building the house was better than watching TV, but I wanted to do more building work.
